

Carved, lacquered and raised pieces

Carved pieces

Carved pieces, called horikoma, are made by carving characters into the wood base of the piece using a stamping knife. Depending on the degree of simplification of the characters, the carving can be categorized as black carving, average carving, mid carving, and superior carving. In addition, pieces carved in traditional typefaces are called meigoma.